NEW YORKISMS.

From Our Own Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Aug. 29. "I have something sweet to tell you," and (although some of the particulars must have reached you ere this) I am obliged to go further into details, because the whole town is talking about them at present. No town loves scandal better than this, and no scandal is petter appreclated than theatrical scandal. As a rule, I admire actors and actresses, especially the latter, and my sympathetic bosom swells to the capacity of Abraham's when I hear that the "cast will embrace Md'ile Blondine," for I should so like to be the cast. But I do not admire the way leading actors and lessees settle their private quarrels. I think the settling ought to be done in the green room, or beneath the stage -anywhere except before the footlights.

I remarked in a previous letter that Lessee Lloyd, of the New York Theatre (tately known as the Worrell Sisters'), and leading actor Harkins, the "Robert Pentola" of Fout Play, hal disagreed about money matters. How sheriffs, and sheriffs' deputies, police court justices, supreme court justices, policemen, reporters, call-boys, leading juveniles, utility men, heavy old women, and theatrical properties got mixed up together in one heterogeneous and unravellable mass, I am not going to detail here. It is enough to say that from first to last the affair has crowded the auditorium of the Broadway Theatre, to which Fout Play was removed, with people and the treasury of the Broadway Theatre with the greenbacks. Everybody goes there to see "what will be the row to-night." Ever since last Monday evening crowds have com menced to gather around the portals as soon as the stores began to close, and clerks, por ters, and store-boys felt themselves at liberty for the night. In brief, everybody was in for a spree, and on Thursday night the spree came off, though not in the manner expected. On Monday night the homicidal assault was made by the ruffianly hirelings of the Sheriff, O'Brien, I believe, was his name. On Wednesday night one of Mr. Lloyd's clerks (who, whatever other shamefaced sinners may do at doomsday, may safely be trusted not to do anything so becoming as to call on the rocks and mountains to cover him, when his turn comes) skipped down the centre aisle of the theatre just when the climax of the play was reached, got over the orchestra rails (I don't know how he did it), and presented an injunction to Mr. Harkins as if it had been a pistol. Everybody expected it would go off, but instead of its going off, Mr. Lloyd's clerk went off, and so quickly, too, that be might have vanished by spontaneous combustion for anything the audience could swear to the contrary. This graceful episode enacted, the actors bethought themselves of their p's and q's-the piece and the cues I mean -and the drama amicably proceeded. All this was very good, but not enough. Since Messrs. Harkins and Lloyd have gained so much pubheity already, I am sure Philadelphians will not grudge extending them those courtesles of the press which they have received in the metropolis. Thursday night the curtain went up, and the actors went on, and the house came down, as usual. Just before the second act was to com. mence, however, Mr. Harkins stepped before the footlights, holding in one hand a Brobdinagian MSS, and in the other a Lilliputian pamphlet. I believe that it is generally conceded that there was only one man upon the American stage who can make a speech, and that man is the versatile author of the Lottery of Life. Notwithstanding such a broom being in his way, however, Mr. Harkinsmade one of the neatest speeches I have lately listened to, and begged to explain that an injunction having been served on him, which precluded his performing in Foul Play, as produced at the New York Theatre, he would have the pleasure and honor of performing in the Fout Play of Mr. Boucicault's dramatization, as printed and performed at the Holborn Theatre, London. I frankly own that my sympathies in the first place were with Lloyd, thinking, as I did, that Harkins had no business to take the money in the till-or, rather, out or it; but they have wheeled around in favor of Harkins, who, whatever may be said to his discredit, has behaved in public with a forbearance which is in pleasing contrast to the conduct of his adver-

Mr. Bergh's sympathies have lately been so exclusively enlisted in the interests of cattle, instead of cats, that he had no time to prosecute a kitten cannibal who was yesterday brought to the bar of justice at the Tombs. Michael Norton, however, who bids fair to become a worthy successor of Bergh, when that gentleman shall have honorably devoted a few more years to the welfare of beasts, brought a charge against John Geary, the name of the miscreant in question, and accused him of biting off part of the leg of a live kitten. (Kitten shown up in Court with one of her paws bitten off.) Mr. Geary's defense was that he was drunk at the time; that his comrades dared him to bite off the kitten's tail; that he made a mistake and got one of her legs in his mouth instead, and that in the confusion he bit off a paw. So Mr. Geary was committed to the Tombs. I am afraid, had he been with Don Juan at the shipwreck, he would have been the first to snatch at the spaniel's forepaw

. Which Juan handed to Pedrillo, who Devoured it, longing for the other, too."

Once in a while a thief evinces a legerdemain of mind and muscle worthy of a better cause. This was the case with "Dutch Hendricks," a thief who is notorious for the successful raids he has made on banks and mail bags, his pecu Harity being that he always manages to escape conviction. Of course he has numerous aliases. the last one that he gave being that of Edward Marks. The latest chef d'œuvre he attempted was robbing Mr. Patrick Dickey, a gentleman aged seventy-five, of $15,000 in Government bonds. How he managed to abstract the wallet containing them, from Mr. Dickey's pocket, is known only to the police and the agile-fingered brothers and sisters of "Dutch Heindricks." Mr. Dickey did not miss the wallet until he was emerging from a Seventh avenue car, at the term:nus on Barclay street, near Broadway. At that moment he observed a young man, who had sat beside him in the carpass rapidly through Rushton's drug store, which is at the corner of Barclay street and Broadway. entering it on the Barclay street side and imme diately reissuing on the Broadway. "Stop thief! stop thief!" set up by Mr. Dickeybecame in a moment the general cry' and in another instant "Dutch Heindricks" and a bystander named Burnell, who endeavored to obey Mr. Dickey's frantic injunction, were spraw 11L & together on the side walk by the Astor H their garments mutually torn in a highly indecorous manner. Policem+n came up; "Dutch Heindricks" was arrested. but the wailet and the $15,000 in Governmen' bonds were nowhere to be found. Charles Reade's "Very Hard Cash," or Wilkie Collins' "Moonstone," never more mysteriously vanshed, and since nothing can be proved against 'Dutch Heindricks," except that he rushed in at. one door of Mr. Rushton's store and out at the other, I presume "Dutch Heindricks" will be set

It is rumored here that Dr. T. S. Booth, the oldest brother of Edwin Booth, is to reappear upon the stage this fall, after an absence of twenty years. Some of Dr. Booth's Philadeiphia triends ought to know whether there is any rath in this report.

Did I mention to you the pedestrian Goulding's intention to out walk all other pedestrians, past, present, or to come? The performance he has prescribed for himself is the walking of five hundred miles in five hundred consecutive quarter-hours, or one mile every quarter of an hour until the whole five hundred are completed. The tine required is about five days and a quarter, and if John comes out all right I shall be sorry for his own sake. Somebody says that nothing is so unfortunate for a man as to get well out of a scrape. I presume that the somebody thought it hardened him, and made him reckless for the future. Just so with John. His 1000-mile wark addled his brains, according to his own confession, and now he is addling them over again by a feat whose magnitude the average pedestrian can form no conception of. The next achieve ment, of course, will be 1000 miles in 1000 consecutive ten minutes. But one would think that my pen was a pedestrian at the rate at which it is going, so that I am glad I have reached the goal, where I may sign myself

TNRIVALLED POPULABITY. - We have seen much and heard more of the Sewing Machine within the last ten years, and have listened to all soris of criti, clams upon the various makes of those instruments now before the poprie; but in all this time we have heard of no change in the popular opinion expressed with regard to the Grover & Baker Machines; at least no change except that what has always been spoken well of is being constantly winning new bonors, and sharing in a still more eminent degree the confidence, and we may say, the affections of the public. In the Grover & Baker Machines the beau toesl of sewing-machine perfection may be said to have been fairly attained. Everybody should see these superbinstruments at the Company's Rooms No. 730 Caesnut street-

PHILADELPHIA ENTERPRISE.- We have seldom seen the Cot on Trade so largely represented as were in attendance at the auction store of Samuel C. Cook. Esq., on Front street, this morning, the occasion being the sale of the first bale of new Cotton raised in Georgia, consigned to the enterprising firm of Messrs. Claghorn, Herring & Co., of this city. It was started at 25 cents per pound, when the bidding became active and spirited, and was finally knocked down to Mesars. J. P. Bruner & Sons for 45 cents per pound.

THERE ARE SOME THINGS which people never tire of, and it would certainly seem that people are never tired of buying the delicious, fine confections manufactured and sold by Messrs E. G. Whitman & Co. at No. 318 Chesnut street. This firm, besides being very extensively patronized by our chilzens, is daily receiving orders from all parts of the country, and no wonder, for their confections are made from the purest and best materials. They are put up in neat boxes for carrying, or, if so ordered, are sent to any part of the city without charge.

The Difficu.'ty Between Secretary McCulloch and Mr. Rollins -Senator Wilson's Recent Speech.

Ete., Etc., Etc., Etc.,

FROM WASHINGTON.

Commissioner Rollins to be Suspended. Special Despatch to The Brening Telegraph. WASHINGTON, Aug. 29 .- Tacre is a rumor today that Mr. Rollins is to be suspended at once. Secretary McCulloch had a long interview with the President to-day, understood to relate to

Mr. Rollins. What the result of it was is not known, but the rumor probably originated from this circumstance. Senator Morgan has authorized the Secretary of the Union Republican Congressional Committee to issue a large pamphlet edition of Senator Wilson's recent speech at Bangor, Me., in reply to Pendieton, for campaign purposes. It is regarded here as the most complete and effective speech delivered thus far in the campaign.

Revenue Matters. It may be of interest to officials under the new internal revenue law to know that Commissioner Rollins has officially approved of the books prepared for their use under the said lawby Ph lps & Solomon, of this city, as being in precise accordance with the prescribed forms of
